

A Frederick R. & Margaret B. Matson Lecture in Near Eastern Archaeology and World Archaeological Technology presented by The Archaeological Institute of America · Western Illinois Society

WHERE THE BEER FLOWED LIKE WINE BEER-BREWING IN BRONZE AGE MESOPOTAMIA

For thousands of years, people have been intentionally fermenting cereal grains to create their own unique versions of the intoxicating beverage that we now call beer.

Join Dr. Tate Paulette in the exploration of Bronze Age beer culture and recent efforts to recreate Mesopotamian beer.
